

Parallax effects in views from 3 camera locations (left to right) are consistent with spot origin at septum window

A dark, blurry photograph showing a bright, circular beam spot on a vertical surface, likely a septum. A component labeled 'OM2' is partially obscuring the beam spot. The background is dark and indistinct.

OM2 partially blocking beam spot on septum. No location gives a view of the whole beam spot.