

Photo from PRM camera viewport, which is right near where the stray beam hits. The stray beam is likely coming from (or reflected by) PR3, because of the excess light coming from that optic (compare to PRM, which is more aligned with the viewport).

